

CONSULTANT SUCCESS STORY:

Thomas Tilley, Consultis Consultant

Business Analyst

Demand for top technical talent is at a peak right now. For consultants, that can mean a sea of offers - but knowing which options are the right ones can be challenging. Consultis is known for providing exceptional opportunities, professional respect and outstanding service to help our consultants reach their goals. Here is a first-hand example of how Consultis works hard to meet the needs of our consultants.

"I was at the point in my career where I was ready to build my resume and move forward on my professional path."

Kick-starting a successful technical career takes a lot of preparation. I was at the point where I had just completed building my background and technical ability through education and internships. I was ready to shape my resume and move forward on my professional path. I was searching for the right role to take that next step - one that would take advantage of my current skills while providing an opportunity to develop the skills I needed moving forward. That's what led me to Consultis.

"I was immediately impressed with Consultis and knew I had made the right decision."

Prior to finding the job opportunity with Consultis, I had a negative experience working with a consulting company. Basically, my skills weren't a perfect match for the position where I was placed, and I felt like they were that stereotypical "people pushing" type of organization. My relationship with Consultis was a complete shift from that experience. I was immediately impressed with them and knew I had made the right decision.

Working with Consultis, I felt that they didn't just match my background to the position. They matched me as a WHOLE candidate. They took everything into consideration - background, experience, skills, personality - to ensure I was the right fit for their client. I could sense their thoughtfulness - a different approach from other consulting firms - from the first moment I met with my recruiter. What a difference! I felt truly valued and appreciated for what I brought to the table, and I knew that they were really looking out for my interests and career goals.

"Consultis placed me into a supportive company that has been incredible."

I'm closing in on a year with my employer, and things are going really, really well. With my background in business and technology, one of my primary goals was to get stronger in those areas. Working as a business analyst, I was hoping to move more toward a technical position. My managers recognized that - they saw potential in me and have actually given me some additional responsibility since starting. With more technical responsibilities, I can now further develop those tech skills while remaining a business analyst and interacting with clients.

Working with my employer feels like a family - a company where they actually care about their employees. Not only do they support their employees in finding their strengths, they also help them overcome their weaknesses and turn them into strengths so they can work toward their goals and contribute as much as possible to the success of the company.

They have been fantastic at recognizing my skillset while supporting and nurturing my long-term goals. I am incredibly grateful to Consultis for matching me with this excellent company!

"Consultis is great because they're still there, even after the placement."

My role is a permanent placement, so I am technically their employee now. But my Consultis recruiter calls me occasionally to see how I'm doing and how I'm enjoying the job. They are staying in touch to keep the relationship dynamic and to see how I am progressing in my position and within the company. Just the fact that they touch base to let me know if I ever want to move into another role indicates that they're here for me. That means a lot. With a lot of companies, they move on after the placement - especially when it comes to a permanent placement. I'm glad they keep in touch, not only to support me in my goals, but so that I can refer them to friends and acquaintances who are also looking for technical roles.
